

KATHMANDU VALLEY

UNESCO WORLD HERITAGE CITY TOUR

Route A

Pashupatinath Temple

One of the holiest Hindu shrines in the world, Pashupatinath lies 5 km to the east of the city center. The fabulous pagoda houses the linga (phallic symbol) of Lord Shiva. The complex contains many other temples, and the holy Bagmati River flows beside it.

Boudhanath Stupa

This Bauddha stupa was built shortly after the death of Lord Buddha, and is the largest single Chhorten in the world. Boudhanath is a stupa in Kathmandu, Nepal. It is known as Khāsti in Nepal Bhasa, Jyarung Khashor in Tibetan language. Located about 11 km (6.8 mi) from the center and northeastern outskirts of Kathmandu, the stupa's massive mandala makes it one of the largest spherical stupas in Nepal. The ancient Stupa is one of the largest in the world.

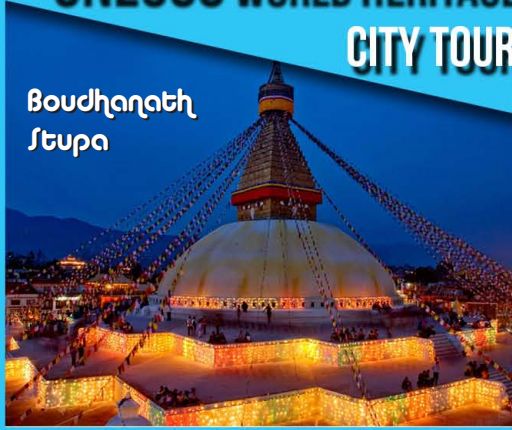

Swayambhunath Stupa

Swayambhunath Stupa watches over the valley from the top of a hillock to the west. One of the holiest Buddhist site in Nepal, its establishment is linked to the creation of the Kathmandu valley. Sengu is another name for Swayambhu. You can have a magnificent view of Kathmandu from here.

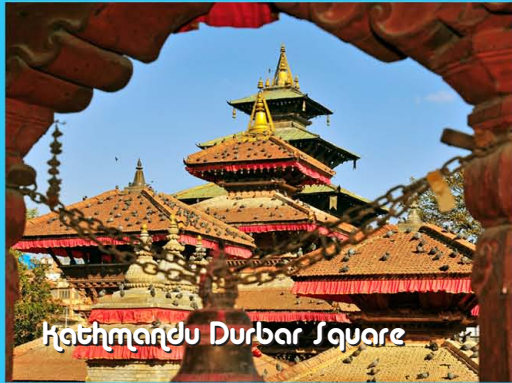

Kathmandu Durbar Square

This complex of places building, courtyards and pagoda temples, built between the 12th and 18th centuries, used to be the seat of the ancient Malla kings of Kathmandu. It is urban and ceremonial focal point of the city.
